AID THE DEATH PENALTY

MRS. DRUSE HANGED FOR THE MUR-DER OF HER HUSBAND.

An Account of the Horrible Butchery for Which She Died-A Confession Left With the Dead Woman's Pastor Made Public.

Her Last Night on Earth. HERKIMER, N. Y., March 1.—Mrs. Roxalina Druse was hanged here at 11:48 p. m., for the murder of her husband, December 11, 1881. After hanging six minutes she was pronounced dead. Her last moments were masked with rare fortitude.

The condemned woman slept little during the night. She did not retire until midnight, and then she refused to undress, saying it was hardly worth while, as she expected to get little sleep. When she did sleep her mutterings indicated acute mental torture. At short intervals during the balance of the night Mrs. Druse would jump up and ner-vously resume her writing. She wrote let-ters to her friends, and appeared to find relief in the occupation. Some flowers accompanying a letter from her daughter Mary, who is confined in the Syracuse Penitentiary for life, which were brought to her last night, seemed to affect her deeply. She wrote a touching note to her daughter in reply. At times she wept quietly, particularly when writing to Mary.

Her bearing, however, as a whole, was resolute, and her resignation to the inevitable appeared to increase as the night wore on. Her fear of approaching death was nevertheless made apparent by occasional exclamations of despair. At times during the night the watchers thought the unfortunate woman had found relief in sleep, but they were gen-erally mistaken. And thus the night wore on, and the miserable woman at the break of day was still making an effort to obtain a little rest: At last, finding it was impossible to sleep, she arose, bathed her face, and began making preparations for the ordeal through which she was soon to pass.

Within the jail preparations for the hanging had been fully completed, and everything possible had been done toward a successful consummation of the decree of the law. There were very few persons in town when the day broke, but at an early hour teams drawing conveyances began coming in, notwithstanding the bad condition of the roads and low thermometer. The people for the most part, especially the women, seemed to deeply sympathize with the condemned

After dressing herself in a most careful manner, putting on a black cashmere dress, the murderess sat down to breakfast, but  Unprecedented attraction! Over HALF could not eat any of the food. She was then joined by the Rev. Dr. Powell, her spiritual adviser, who prayed with her and in every way tried to comfort her. Mrs. Druse then broke down almost completely and it was feared she would have to be carried to the gallows. She, however, after having received some encouragement from Dr. Powell, recovered her composure and the procession to the scaffold was formed. Sheriff Cook led the way followed by the prisoner, leaning heavily on the arm of Rev. Dr. Powell. Her face was greatly flushed but no tears were shed, although an expression of utter hopelessness and resignation, even despair, was plainty visible.

Upon reaching the fatal spot Mrs. Druse stepped to the middle of the board platform built upon the ground, and knelt while Dr. Powell offered up prayer, lasting about three minutes. Happening to cast her eyes upward, she caught sight of the dangling noose, which she had not noticed before, and a convulsive tremor shook her slight frame. She also sobbed gently at intervals. At the end of the prayer both prisoner and clergyman arose, when Dr. Powell, grasping her hand, bade her good-bye, and stepped outside of the enclosure, so as not to witness the hanging. Previous to this, however, Mrs. Druse leaned over and whispered to Dr. Powell a request that he thank her friends who had labored so long and faithfully in her behalf. Mrs. Druse still held in her hand the boquet which her daughter had sent her. These she gave to the doctor. executioner then stepped forward and pinioned her arms and legs together. The noose was adjustes and the black cap drawn down over her face. At this point the prisoner again showed signs of collapse, and began to shriek and scream at the top of her voice in a hysterical manner, but the drop of the 215 pounds weight choked her cries in her throat. and the body of the murderess, whose awful crime has shocked the entire country, was sent flying up a ut four feet, shooting forward to the right and settling back to within a foot and half of the platform. Drs. Suiter and Kay stepped forward and examined the pulse beats, which were almost imperceptible. After the lapse of one minute a spasmodic clenching of the fingers occurred, followed by efforts to draw up the legs. The pulse also began to beat very rapidly, about 102, although very feeble. This increased at three minutes to 140, although still quite weak. The pulsations were then less rapid, decreasing two minutes later to 120. The heart beats at this time were forty-five per minute. The pulse continued to get slower until fifteen minutes after the drop fell, life was pronounced extinct by Dr. Suiter. The drop fell at 11:48, life was pronounced extinct at 12:03, and the body was lowered on to the stretcher at 12:14, according to the watch of

of the face were much discolored, and the rope marks were plainly visible. The noose had cut a bunch of flowers and some lace which she had worn at her neck and forced them into the flesh. The body was at once put into the coffin and turned over to Dr. Powell, who will probably take the remains to the receiving vault of Oak Hill cemetery and lock them up, until he determines what final disposition to make of them. The date Thus ends this horrible tragedy, the revoltmunity.

The crime for which Mrs. Druse was hanged December 18, 1881, at their home in Herkimer, N. Y. The family consisted of Mr. and Mrs. Druse; the daughter, Mary, aged nineteen years; the son, George, aged ten years, and a nephew, Frank Gates, aged fourteen years. A quarrel had occurred on the morning of the homicide between husband and wife at the breakfast table. Mrs. Druse left the table, went into her room and returned with a revolver. She whispered to the boys to go out of doors, which they did, leaving herself, the daughter Mary and the husband in the room. Mary threw a rope around her father's neck while he was at the table, and Mrs. Druse fired the revolver once or twice at him, wounding him and he fell over sideways in his chair, while the murderess, being unable to make the revolver go off again, called to the nephew, Frank, who came in the house, together with the boy

Mrs. Druse then gave the revolver to the nephew, and, under a threat of killing him, compelled him to fire it off two or three times. The victim rolled off the chair upon the floor, and then the infuriated woman seized the ax and hit her husband on the head with it, he exclaiming: "Oh, Roxy, don't!" and she continued hitting him on the neck until she chopped the head off. She then carried the remains into the parlor, and during that day and evening the body was cut up with an ax and was burned up in the stove. She threatened to kill the boys if they told what had occurred, burned all her husband's clothes, and made every effort to conceal the crime, causing the ashes in the stove where the body had beed burned to be taken up and thrown into a swamp and the revolver and ax to be thrown into a pond, and had telegrams sent to friends in other places making false and misleading inquiries as to her hus-band, and compelled the boys to tell every one that her husband had gone away from home. During the evening, while Mrs. Druse and Mary were burning the body in the par-lor, the two boys were amusing themselves by playing checkers in the adjoining room where the murder had been committed. That William Druse made his wife and children lead the lives of dogs there is no manner of doubt. From his boyhood up he was noted for his ungovernable temper, and it is generally conceded that had the murder not been accompanied by the horrible mutilation of the body, the death penalty would never have been imposed.

William Druse seemed to be half daft in some ways. He had a mania for reading newspapers through from beginning to end. He would walk miles to a farm house where he had heard a comparatively fresh process was to be seen, and long after the farmer an i his family had gone to bed, in order to puzzle out every line and ward of the print. It was the absence of "Shiftless Bill Druse" that first led to suspicion. The neighbors knew he led his family a miserable life, and they was quick to beheve he had been made away with. Several days elapsed before the ax with which the mutilation had been committed was found. It was identified as Druse's ax. Then a meeting of farmers was called, and the two little boys were subjected to an examination which finally elicited the whole story of the butchery. The arrest of the whole family speedily followed, and at the trial Mary confessed the crime, and was sentenced to life imprisonment. Mrs. Druse stoutly insisted that she killed her hu-band in self-defense.

Mrs. Druse's counsel, backed by a public sentiment averse to the execution of a woman, made every effort to have the death sentence commuted to life imprisonment. Mrs. Druse's case had gone through all the courts and the judgment of the first court was affirmed in every case. The day for execution was originally set for December 29 last, but Governor Hill granted a reprieve in order, as he said, that the legislature might take action looking to an amendment of the statutes so as to exempt women from the death penalty. The legislature, however, by a close majority refused to pass the amendment, and thus Mrs. Druse's fate was sealed, as the governor positively refused to grant a further commutation. A lunacy commission was also appointed by the govrnor to investigate the case and examine the oman, but pronounced her sane.

Mrs. Druse is the fifth woman hanged in Yew York for murder. The first was Ann Hoags, in the early part of the century; the second was Margaret Houghtaling, alias Peggy Dinsmore, hanged at Hudson, October 18, 1817 for child murder; the third was Mrs. an Valkenberg, at Johnstown, January 24, 846, for husband murder, and Mrs. Rankle, at Whitesboro, in 1849.

Mrs, Druse's Confession.

HERKIMER, N. Y., March 1.-At 9 o'clock yesterday morning Dr. Powell received a message from the jail requesting his presence at once, as Mrs. Druse wished to see him. He immediately went to the cell of the doomed woman, who greeted him very warmly. The attendant was requested to leave them in seclusion, but refused to do so. Sheriff Cook was appealed to and the request was granted. Mrs. Druse then said: "Mr. Powell, I have sent for you to make a confession, will you listen?" "Yes, certainly," replied the doctor.

"What I am about to say to you has never been made public before, and I assure you on the honor of a woman standing on the brink of the grave that I am speaking the truth. The world has turned against me, but I know I have one friend left, and that is you. Now, you must promise that you will not say a word of this until I am gone. Then you can publish it, and let the world know the truth of the matter. I don't want to take any more of your time than I can help, so I will begin: I must take you back before the murder and tell of a conversation had with Charles Gates in reference to the killing of Druse. It was about December 1, Wednes brought in. When the black cap was drawn day night. Druse was away, as he usually back it was found that death had resulted was, a big part of the time. Gates came in from asphyxia. The neck and lower portions and asked me if I was alone. Georgie and

Frank were out riding down hill and Mary was upstairs.
"Gates asked me if I did not want to get rid of Druse. I told him I was nearly dead now and did not care what happened. He asked me if I had the pistol he gave me. It was in the pantry, and I told him so. I went and got it and showed it to him. He saw it was not loaded in all the barrels, and he put in some more cartridges and gave it back to and I went to the door and snapped it. It ing details of which have shocked the com- did not go off, and he put in another cartridge and said! 'Well, you know how to do it, and that is enough.' He then said: 'Now, was the murder of her husband, William, if anything happens you can depend on me December 18, 1881, at their home in Herkito to help you.' He went away and came back on December 17th, the night before the murder, and told me to hurry up and take the first chance I got. He said I should not burn the head, and that he would take care of that. He said he would get the buckwheat at the same time, and save any cause of sus

"The next morning I saw him coming up the road just as Druse sat down to breakfast. This was just after he had raised the ax to strike me, and I ran into the pantry. I got the pistol and came out. He was sitting down at the table. He swore awful about the tea and sugar, and I raised the pistol and shot, I hit him in the neck and only stunned him. Gates then shot through the window, and he fell to the floor. Gates then shot again. I only shot once. Gates shot three or four times. I took the ax and cut the head off and chopped him up. The head was wrapped in paper and carried out to the woodshed. It was put in a lot of buckwheat. The body was all burned up, and none was given to the pigs. That part is not true. It was all boiled and then burned. Gates came that night and I told him what had happened. He grasped my hand and said I had done nobly. He said he would come for the buckwheat to-morrow morning, which he did. He took Druse's head with him. It was buried one mile from Richfield Springs, where I could find it if I wished, "Charles Peet overheard us talking about it once, but he is dead now and can't talk. Gates is the only one who knows anything about it. There was another man with Gates when he got the buckwheat, and that was Elwood. His name was Bill. It took eight hours to burn the body, and it made an awful smell. I nearly fainted several times. Mary and Frank Gates were there some of the time, but they did not see much. I sent them down to the woods and had them carry shingles. I killed Druse because I could not stand it any longer. He was a brute, and I had not slept with him in twelve years. That is all I can tell. Gates put up Frank to tell what he did to shove it all onto me, but he will get his reward some time.

"No v you must not tell any one this until I am gone, and not let it get into any paper until after 12 o'clock to-morrow. I don't care how many know it then. I trust to you think their credit will not be injured by reto see it is all right. You can say, too, that ports of the real state of the country, most on my dying day I am more innocent of the freely forgive them all-all who so cruelly part of the island. deserted me. There are some names on that petition sent from Warren which I could cover with shame, but I die in peace with everyone." After she had finished Dr. Powell, out of observance of the holy day, offered a short prayer and then took his leave. A MILLION DOLLAR FIRE.

The Morgan Line Steamship Docks in New York Destroyed-Other Losses.

NEW YORK, Murch 1 .- At half-past 6 this morning a most disastrous fire broke out at the Morgan line steamship docks, pier 37, North river, which was so fierce that within an hour the whole pier was destroyed. The Lone Star, one of the steamers of the line was badly damaged; three lighters, loaded with cotton, were consumed, and property estimated at from $750,000 to $1,000,000 was swept away. A strong northwest wind prevailed, which quickly carried the flames beyond the control of the firemen. The pier was loaded with bales of cotton, hides and other merchandise, which were quickly in a blaze, causing a blinding smoke, which greatly impeded the firemen in their efforts to subdue the flames.

The police boat patrol and the fire boats and an army of tugs were summoned, an the most desperate efforis made to save the shipping. The steamer Lone Star, which was lying alonside the dock, was towed on in the stream with her rigging and wood work ablaze. She fortunately had little or no cargo on board. The loss to the steamer by fire or water will be considerable. Chie. of the fire department, Shay, turned the at tention of his men to saving adjoining prop erty as the dock was doomed. The men o Engine Company 27 came very near losing their lives, for some of the sparks ignited the cotton and the dock between them, and the street was impossible to pass. They gained the string piece of the dock and were taken off with much risk by a tug. Half an hour after the fire broke out, the roof of the pier fell with a tremendous crash. On the lighter "Lorena" was 1,100 bales of cotton; on the lighter "Anderson" 1,100 bales, and both will prove a total loss. The Lorena sunk. The lighters and their cargoes were valued at a quarter of a million dollars. Nothing can be heard about the origin of the fire.

GENERAL ROBINSON reports revenue collections for the past month at $80,-690.41—total to date, $3,235,885 54:

GOVERNOR ABBETT is reported quite confident of his election to the United States Senate by the New Jersey Legislature. So was Senator Camden confident of succeeding himself in West Virginia, but he didn't.

SPEAKER CARLISLE thinks "the United States Treasury, needs more fortifications than the country." The onslaught of the pension-schemers and the publicbuilding brigade indicates that Carlisle is about right. However, the Treasury will remain in safe hands as long as Cleveland is President.

General Buckner has explained away the charges made by Senator Harris' friends as to his not voting but four or five times since the war. The charges should never have been made. A candidate's friends will not believe such accusations, and the public will not often condemn a man unheard. This is no way for one Democrat to fight another, and we hope it will be stopped.

been turned into anger and cuss-words. The bill appropriating $60,000 for a public building at that place has been vetoed. The President pointedly remarks in his veto that "the care and protection which the Government owes to the people do not embrace the grant of public buildings to decorate thriving and prosperous an Italian. He considers him far beneath cities and villages." Further on he adds that "the Government is not an almoner of gifts among the people, but an instrumentality by which the people's affairs should be conducted upon business principles, regulated by public needs." The Collector and Postmaster at that place secure good quarters at a rent of $600 a a year, and paying out $60,000 for a public building would be a squandering of the people's money. No fair-minded person will fail to commend the President for his veto of the bill.

IT seems that Hon. W.O. Bradley only has to say to the Republicans of Kentucky "do this," and they obey instructions like meek little lambs. Bradley is credited with being a pretty slick fellow. The other Republicans who are aspirants for Gubernatorial honors have been at a loss to account for the almost unanimous in- York Tribune. structions for the Colonel from every section of the State. They need not longer rest in the dark. The following explains things:

LANCAST R, KY., January 2, 1887-I am a candidate for the Republican nomination for Governor, and from reliable information from all parts of the State believe that there is no doubt of my success. However, an unanimous nomination would give the party great strength in August, and secure perfect harmony.

This can be accomplished by my friends causing County Coventions to be called at once and delegates instructed for me. Will you kindly have such action taken in your county? Yours, &c., W. O. BRADLEY.

Bradley may learn before it's all over, that "an unnanimous nomination" gained in this way will not add much strength to his party.

ITALIANS AS RAILROAD BUILDERS.

Supplanting Irishmen on Great Contracts-Talk With a Contractor.

Heman Clark, who is associated with John O'Brien in building a large part of the new aqueduct, is one of the most extensive railroad contractors in the United States. He employs men by the thousand all over the country and has had a long experience with laborers of all nationalities. His attention was called to the statement recently published that the Italians were rapidly supplanting the Irish in all kinds of contract work in New England. "It is not only true in regard to New England, but of all parts of the country," he said. "On all the big railroad jobs throughout the west you will find Italians in droves. In fact, I think I might safely say that at present fully 30 per cent. of the hands employed on this kind of work are Italians. On some roads they are employed almost ex-

"To be sure, they are not nearly as good workmen as the Irish, but they can be hired at cheaper rates—so much cheaper, indeed, as to more than make up what they lack in ability? Then they are as a rule quiet and industrious. They live cheaply and save almost all they earn. Their one aim is to make what they consider a fortune-$500 to $1,000-and go back to Italy, where they can live at ease PORTSMOUTH'S joy and rejoicing has for the rest of their lives on this amount. They never think of settling here, being much like the Chinese in this respect. They are superior to the Celestials, however, as workmen. The Chinese are of little use for outdoor work. On one job we had on the Pacific coast there were 5,000 of them employed. I discharged every one of them. It didn't pay to have them around at any wages; at least I thought so. An Irishman looks down on him, and where the modern Romans are employed in large numbers you'll see the Irish superintending them as section bosses."

"Do you consider the Irishman the most efficient railroad laborer?" "The Irish and the Scandinavians are the best. We employ a great many of the latter. They are good hands and like the Irish are ambitious, only their ambition takes another form. They are always on the lookout for a place to settle down and buy a little farm. When they have earned enough to do this they go back to this spot and become in time good citizens. The Italian simply works for money and this he carries around with him or else banks it here in New York. They come to this country in droves-brought over of course by the padrones who bear almost the same relation to them that the Six Companies did to the Chinese. They are increasing every year. Except in the east they have not yet become a factor in politics. They are averse to strikes and hence employers find them useful as a sort of balance wheel in the troubles that are constantly arising between themselves and their help. For this reason their emigration is encouraged."-New Intelligence of Cats.

"Talk about dogs," said the proprietor of a saloon, the other day, "when you find a dog that has the intelligence of that cat just let me know," pointing to a huge yellow cat that lay contentedly asleep near the stove. "I can talk to that cat just the same as I would to a human being, and she understands me. She will fetch and carry just like a dog, and in sweeping up at night, if I leave anything on the floor she will find it and bring it to me. I could teach her anything. My mother, up stairs, suffers with rheumatism, and she uses that cat instead of a hot bottle to keep her feet warm. Any time, night or day, she will Lop up on the bed when called and stretch aerself on my mother's feet and stay there until told to go down. She will sleep there all night without moving."

Just then something as black as midnight fashed upon the counter, and with a magnificent bound sprang four feet vertically upward to the top of a cooler near.

'Gracious!" exclaimed the reporter, "what's

"That's Satan," exclaimed the proprietor quietly. "Ain't he a jumper? That cat can spring around among those bottles recklessly, and I never knew him to break one. But here's something curious for you." He opened a door and called in a purring voice, "Kitty, kitty, kitty." There was a miaul outside, and then a cat as white as snow came creeping into the room, and then another of the same

"Ain't they beauties?" said the owner, admiringly. "Look here! Did you ever see such eyes?" placing one on the table. Curiously enough, one eye of each cat was a glowing amber in color and the other a beautiful

"They have kittens outside, too, and they have the same eyes as the father and mother. I don't know what kind of cats they are. An old sea captain gave them to me. What do you think an old maid would give for those cats?"

"Go out," he continued to the cats, and the beautiful creatures crept meekly out.

"I allow the black cat and the yellow one only in here, and the white ones only in there, and it's curious how well they know where they belong. I might leave that door open and the cats would stay in their respective rooms. Wonderful, ain't they?"-New York

A Monument to Napoleon III. A very violent controversy is going on in most of the papers on the proposal of Sig. Negri, syndic of Milan, to erect the monument executed in honor of Napoleon III, in 1873. The Milanese, remembering Napoleon's efforts for the liberation of Lombardy, and his triumphant entry into Milan by the been erected. But unexpected opposition arose from a strong faction of the advanced party. They rembered that in 1867 Louis Napoleon's troops opposed at Mentana the attempt of the Italian volunteers to liberate tion of this monument in a public square.

Serious disturbances ensued, and it was decided to let the question stand over. It is now thought that the municipal council will insist upon the erection of the monument,-Rome Cor. London News.

The Effects of Malaria.

It does not matter at all whether the malaria springs from a rocky sub-stratum which keeps the surface water from passing off, as on Staten Island and much of the coast knolls, or from underground streams, as in the lower half of New York city, or low river flats, whether those of the Bronx or the Potomac, or a country barnyard, or a combination of sanitary blunders in an uptown mansion, seaside villa or princely schloss. Malaria is bad air, and wherever it comes means first ague, then rheumatism, then death, and the last not before it is wished for. As a clever doctor and inspector of the board of health told the writer in a charming, but unsanitary, house in one of the healthiest places around New York: "You must either have things put in order or die, or else you will wish you had died."-New York Mail and Express.

The Hot End of the Joke.

Here is a good story told of Roddy's cavalry. One day the troopers were about to go into battle, dismounted, leaving every fourth man to hold the horses. The men were drawn up to count from right to left. Of course, every fourth man felt jolly, and this is the way the count went on:

"One, two, three, bully!"

"One, two, three, bully!" Gen. Roddy heard each fourth man call out "bully." His face flushed. When all had called off he said:

"Numbers 1, 2 and "bully" will go into the fight as dismounted cavalry. No. 3 will hold the horses." There were a good many sick "bullies" that

Co-operation in a College. The faculty of Princeton college have agreed upon a plan to admit students to a share in the control of the college. Under the plan, a committee consisting of twelve undergraduates-six seniors, three juniors, two sophomores and one freshman-will be elected by the students for friendly conference with the faculty, who, it is believed, will thus be enabled to administer the discipline of the college with greater ease and justice to all concerned .- Frank Leslie's

FORECAST OF CONGRESS.

WORK FOR THE FRACTION OF A WEEK OF THE PRESENT SESSION.

The Appropriation Bills Reserved for the Fixal Struggle-The Probability of an Extra Session-The President Overwhelmed With Work-National News.

WASHINGTON, March 1 .- During the days and nights of the fractions of a week remain ing to the present session of congress the senate will give instant attention to the conference reports and general appropriation bills, whenever any of them shall make their appearance; and every effort will be put forth to finish the necessary legislation before next Friday noon.

Members of the appropriations committee wpon whom the hardest work devolves, are divided in opinion respecting their ability to accomplish all that is expected, but the majority hope that, barring accidents and willful acts of obstruction, it may still be found possible to avoid the necessity for a called ession of the Fiftieth congress.

To this end the right of the senate and of s committees to an opportunity for deliberation upon the important matters not yet brought before it, will be waived in the senste, as it has been done in previous instances of backwardness, will content itself, under protest, with such amendments to house leg-islation as it can secure in hasty conferences, taking much for granted and trusting much

To print and thoroughy examine the naval priations bills in their several ordinary stages through the senate up to the point of final action, would require almost as many weeks as their are days of the present session. The miscellaneous subjects of legislation which will probably fill up the spare moments are put down in the caucus program as fol-

The labor arbitration bill, land grant forseiture bills, the bill relating to lottery advertisements passing through the mails, bills to quiet land titles, the Des Moines land grant bill, the bill authorizing suits against the United States, bills for the adjudication of private land claims in certain states and territories, the bill for a monument to colored soldiers, the Joseph Francis resolution, the bill to reimburse Virginia and other states their expenses in the war of 1812, and the international copyright bill.

A contest is pending in secret session over the nomination of Public Printer Benedict, and the British extradition treaty remains among the unfinished matters on the executive calendar, but it is not likely to be further pressed for action this session.

In the house the program is to push the propriation bills to completion by giving precedence over all other business, and little general legislation is expected during the remaining days of the session. During the four legislative days remaining it will be in order to pass any measure by a two-thirds vote under a suspension of the rules.

Looking to this last chance the members who are charged with the management of important measures, such as the Pacific railroad inquiry resolution, the department of agriculture bill, the pleuro-pneumonia bill and the educational bill, will make every effort to secure recognition by the speaker in order to get a vote on their bills. Some, a be cut off by the presentation and discussion . of conference reports and other privileged matter.

Senate.

WASHINGTON, March 1 .- A communication from the president was submitted, stating that it was incompatible with public interests to furnish the correspondence with reference to the resignation of Minister Jackson and the seizure of the schooner Rebecca by Mexican authorities.

Mr. Brown said that before this correspondence was referred he wished to call attention to the fact that portions of the correspondence had been furnished to attorneys and others, and that it was no longer held in official secrecy and confidence. He believed that the senate and the public were entitled to it. He proposed to have printed in the Record portions of the correspondence which had come into his hands. Justice to Minister Jackson and a fair representation of the American side of matters at issue required Mr. Brown was interrupled by the arrival of the naval appropriation bill from the house. Mr. Hale moved a second reading of Mr. Edmunds objected. He said that he had determined to oppose any motion tending toward an irregular or hasty action on an appropriation bill. Two years ago while presiding officer of the senate he had seen the most important bills of the session put through with such haste that neither the senate nor the president of the United States had any opportunity to know their contents. Millions of the public moneys were voted away with no safe-guards to check, except the fidelity of the enrolling clerks. He had then resolved never again to be a party to such hasty, irregular and dangerous methods of legislation. It was usual at the close of a session for the senate to be called upon to act in this manner, but he believed it to be in violation of the principles of good government, and was opposed to its repetition.

Mr. Hale agreed with the senator from Vermont. The house had intentionally brought about a state of affairs entirely unjust to the senate, and an extra session could only be averted by the senate consenting to dispose of appropriation bills of the utmost importance in a hasty and irregular manner.

Mr. Allison repeated his former statement that the appropriation bills have never been in such a backward condition at this stage of a session. He said that the conferees ap-pointed by the house on the sundry civil and other appropriation bills had failed to keep their engagement with the senate conferees, and delays had occurred for which the senate was not responsible, which rendered the sitnation even more complicated than when he last reported to the senate. He fully agreed with what the senator from Vermont had said as to the impropriety of the senate permitting itself to be forced to dispose of appropriation bills without proper considera-

After further discussion, Mr. Brown resumed his remarks with reference to Mexican outrages upon American vessels, and sent to the desk several letters between the diplomatic representatives of Mexico and the United States on the subject of the resignation of Minister Jackson.

bill for the erection of a public building at Portsmouth, Ohio, without his approval. Referred to the committee on public buildings and grounds.

Mr. Crisp. of California, asked the House to non-concur in the senate amendments to the joint resolution for an investigation of the Pacific railway by unanimous consent, On objection by Mr. Striat, of Minnesota, the measure was referred to the Pacific railroad committee.

A bill appropriating $150,000 for the construction of a counterpoise battery for the protection of cannon in coast defense was introduced and referred.

The conference report was presented and agreed to on the bill limiting the cost of erecting a public building at Detroit to

The house then went into committee of the whole on the legislative appropriation bill.

Extra Session Talk. WASHINGTON, March 1 .- Talk about the probability of an extra session of congress in onsequence of the delayed condition of appropriation bills is the first thing heard in egislative circles this morning. As an illustration of the diversity of opinions entertained by men in position to know most of the outlook, a meeting this morning in a hotel corridor of Senator Beck, of the senate committee on appropriations, is reported. 'We are going to have an extra session as sure as fate," said Senator Beck. "Our committee was in session until a very late hour last night, and did not move a peg. It is outrageous. The appropriations reposed in the house committees for months, and now they are all dumped on the senate for action within four days. We don't intend to be crowded in that way, and the consequence will be an extra session of congress."

"No sense in it, and no likelihood of it; plenty of time for action," replied Mr. Townshend, complacently. "Besides, you always talk about the inevitableness of an extra session at this time in each congress, and I have observed steadily that the extra sessions have not materialized."

Extending Laws.

WASHINGTON, March 1.—It is understood that Mr. Randall has already prepared a joint resolution, to be submitted to the house as soon as it is absolutely certain that the general appropriation bills cannot pass, providing for the extension of the last laws for another year.

Cleveland Hard at Work.

WASHINGTON, March 1 .- The president has as yet given no intimation as to when he will make the treasury and interstate commerce appointments. He is overwhelmed with work and remains at his desk during the greater portion of the night.

Washington Notes.

Secretary Manuing has decided not to venture upon an ocean trip. He has been urged to go to Europe for the benefit of his health, but has abandoned the idea.

Treasurer Jordan, immediately upon being relieved of his official duties, will sail for Europe on business for the new bank with which he is to be connected.

The president has vetoed the bill providing for the erection of a public building at Lafayette, Ind.

End of Indianola.

INDIANOLA, Tex., March 1.-The Southern Pacific company will abandon its terminus at this point and run its track to Lavoca on Matagorday Bay, ten miles above here. This practically ends the existence of Indianola. The severe storms of the past twelve years have ruined the place. Aside from the great very few, of these efforts may succeed, but losses to property, 400 lives were sacrificed uning that period. The public buildings will also be removed to port Lavoca, and citizens are also beginning to move their dwellings to that place.

Dropped Dead.

CINCINNATI, March 1 .- John Miller, aged fifty years, unmarried, and residing with his sister, Mrs. Kramit, at 67 Buckeye street, dropped dead at 8 o'clock this morning in the pork house of Thoms & Brennaman, at Ninth and Sycamore streets. The man had been ill for several weeks, and had just returned to work this morning. He was a laborer. The cause of death is supposed to be heart disease.

The Explosion at Carbon.

BRAZIL, Ind., March 1.—The explosion of the Litchfield shaft boiler, near Carbon, Saturday morning, may end more seriously than reported in loss of life. William M. He had resided here ever since, and for the past seventeen years did a successful banking business under the firm name of P. Andrew, Ex-Alderman Cleary's Trial.

NEW YORK, March 1. - Ex-Alderman Cleary appeared for trial this morning in Oyer and Terminer, accompanied by his counsel, including Hon. Daniel Dougherty, of Philadelphia. Mr. Shaffer announced that the defense would like to call Judge Barrett as a witness and as the court could not hear its own testimony, asked a two weeks delay so that the case could be called before some other judge.

Leg Broken in an Elevator.

CINCINNATI, March 1 .- As Charles Mechan, rooming at No. 47 George street, was taking barrel of paste to the upper part of the Cincinnati Paste company's works, Nos. 8 and 10 Home street, at 11 a. m., the elevator broke at the second story and fell to the cellar. Meehan's right leg was broken between the ankle and knee, and he was otherwise bruised. He was taken to the city hospital.

Rough Weather at Sea.

NEW YORK, March 1 .- The Inman line steamship, City of Richmond, which arrived to-day, was knocked about in lively style by northwesterly gales and turbulent head seas. She shipped plenty of water, but came into port uninjured. She was unable to land her emigrant passengers as the bay was so rough that the transfer barges could not get along-ind is the best remedy for the cure of all affections of the Throat, Lungs and Chest, such as Consumption Colds, Coughs, Asthma, Bronchitis, Whooping Cough, Croup, Pain or Oppression of the Chest, Hoarseness, Spitting of Blood, and all Pulmonary Diseases.

OF WILD CHERRY, TAR, CLYCERINE, ETC. WILL CURE CONSUMPTION

We have the gratifying fact to know that it can be cured with GOOCH'S MEXICAN SYRUP. Tuber culous matter is nothing more than nourishment imperfectly organized. Now, if we can procure the organization of this food material so that through the process of electric affinity it may take its slace in the system, we can cure the disease. This is just what this Syrup does. It at once stop the progress of the disease by preventing the further supply of tuberculous matter, for while the system is inder its influence all nourishment is organized and assimilated. It thus controls Cough, Night Sweats and other symptoms of Consumption. Consumption is one of the most loathsome and terrible of all latal diseases, and makes the life of the poor consumptive a hell on earth. Until recently that terrible disease has been considered an affliction beyond the reach of medicine; but a new era in the management of columniary diseases seems to be dawning upon the scientific medical world, and, since many distinguished divisions have acknowledged that consumption can be cured, few there are who attempt to controver heir opinion. To those singled out as victims to that fatal malady, we offer a remedy sure in its result atteing back health to their poor weakened frames, and joy to the hearts of their friends.

Consumptives, because all other things fail, believe not that MEXICAN SYRUP will. Not a single suffere need perish if he or she will take GOOCH'S MEXICAN SYRUP in time. A cough is unlike any other symptom of disease. It stands a conspirator, with threatening vice, menacing the health and exist mee of a vical organ; so commence at once at the first indication of a cough. Thy IT, you who suffer, and seconvinced. Do you want to be saved from a consumptive's grave? Then make one more trial. This remedy is in the reach of everybody; it only costs 50 cents a bottle. Is your life not worth 50 cents? I so, make one more trial. Is not your life indeed worth one more trial? Test the triuh of our words, it makes one single bottle; and never gi
